

Quantify and Qualify to Ensure Best Image and Data Protection

Over 30 years of providing restoration and preservation services, we have seen it all.

Film in all formats and types, data in varied stages and storage media – and we have used our audit and assessment skills to properly prepare the assets for restoration, preservation or conversion.

It has not always been easy. Too often, after production wraps, there may not be time for a studio to fully catalog and logically store all the elements of the image assets before they are sent on for storage in the archive. We've seen this often over the years, from older finished film reels to recent data tapes.

The challenge then is to restore order to the archived assets before we set to work on them. To fulfill our mission, we first quantify and qualify the asset elements to ensure their integrity and how and where they can be made to fit seamlessly in their final form.

This takes time and so we have added a new service – Quantify and Qualify – that can be provided in advance for customers and projects in our pipeline that are still awaiting the final greenlight to move ahead. To save you time, we will accept the assets as stored, do the initial preparation and report back to you – so that when projects are formally approved, our work can proceed in a timely way.

As a world leader in film restoration and preservation, digital migration and data protection, ImagePro's expert services support your efforts. Our services are comprehensive yet scalable.

Please call me at (818) 434-7628 to discuss how we can Quantify and Qualify your assets.

Sean Coughlin

Founder, President & CEO
Image Protection Services LLC
Burbank, CA

For information or to set a meeting, call Sean Coughlin (818) 434-7628
or contact Sean by email sean.coughlin@imageprotections.com

www.imageprotections.com